

BULLETIN

Fall 2016 | Internships

September Events:

- The Fall 2016 Cohort just attended their first internship meeting. The meeting discussed the internship module, policies, and timeline. Staff is currently in the process of meeting with students individually to discuss their career goals, current contacts, and preferred internship location.

Upcoming Events:

- The Flagship Program has received a great deal of interest from local companies, many of whom are actively asking for Flagship interns. Companies include: GNC, Kantar Media CIC, Labbrand, and Sifang Art Museum.
- The Internship Staff is planning on visiting the 2016 Spring Cohort in October. Expect lots of pictures in next month's edition!

Another Beginning

As the new fall academic semester begins with 45 new Flagship students, the 2016 Spring Cohort embarks on their internship adventure. This year's cohort is the smallest on record, only two students, but both are adjusting quickly to their new internship environment. Although there was a change of one of the Internship Providers, now both students are firmly settled and taking full advantage of the immersive Chinese workplace to grow linguistically and professionally.

THE LANGUAGE FLAGSHIP

2016 Spring Flagship Student Internships

Student Major	Internship Provider	Industry	Location
Theater	Yu Theatre Workshop	Art/Entertainment	Nanjing
International Business	Edelman	Marketing (Communications)	Beijing

“I’m really learning how to go back and forth between languages, which is a good skill that I hadn’t really had the chance to learn before.” – Alexandra Dare Norman (WKU)

“Overall Chinese language use is prevalent (at work) but I am personally going to be working harder to make it a bigger part of my day and continue working to strike up conversations regarding different topics, formal and informal, in Chinese.” – Eric Brown (SFSU)
